

Medication Policy

Quiet Creek Farm doesn't allow the regular or long-term use of medications that have a high potential for abuse, because of the corrosive effect that use has on the person trying to get clean, as well as on those sharing living space with that person. We understand this may lead to some hardship, but experience has shown us that the long-term use of addictive substances by those attempting recovery just doesn't work.

However, under certain circumstances, we may allow the person entering our program on such medications the opportunity to detoxify from them, either in a state licenses detoxification center, or under certain conditions here at the farm, under medical supervision.